Hear It Again

by Charles Willis

Most small children are allowed to watch videos on the television. Invariably they will have a few favorites which become well known. My children could quote several shows when they were young. Children never seem to tire of watching the same thing over and over.

The same holds true about Bible stories. Once while driving on a trip my son suddenly sat up and said, "Would you read me the story about David and Goliath?" Of course we turned off the radio and read it to him, about two chapters. Afterward he said, "I just love that story."

I don't know when we tend to lose it, but we seem to eventually grow tired of hearing the same story over and over. I fear some in the church grow weary of the gospel message. "I've heard this before" is easily seen on faces of those who listen to sermons. "I already know this" can be heard in the silences during Bible classes. "Why are we doing this again" can be seen on the backs of eyelids. Where is the childhood desire to hear the same story over and over?

Sadly, for many it is gone. We need to regain that aspect of youth and not grow weary in hearing the truth. We must "become like a child" (Matt. 18:3) in more ways than just humility. How are we to know if we are traveling in the ancient paths (Jer. 18:15) if we do not know the ancient stories?

Peter wrote to "stir up your sincere minds by way of reminder" (2 Pet. 3:1). Their knowledge and sincerity is noted, yet they were instructed to hear it again! Peter agitated their minds causing them to think through some things again. "Stirring" does not seem to happen much anymore because we do not take the word of God into our minds. Reading the words becomes an act of "prosaic speech" and preaching becomes a "drone" to be endured.

I want to encourage you to engage your minds in considering God's word. Listen to the stories again. Can we truthfully sing, "Tell me the story of Jesus, write on my heart every word" or "Tell me the Old, Old Story"? Hear it again!
